Mr. Eshelman was funny, honest, caring

BY BILL GISEL
billg@kpcnews.net

KENDALLVILLE — Dale Eshelman remembered every joke he ever heard during his long career as a salesman, according to his daughter, Margaret Tarney Ewing.

Even when he was a resident of the Provena Sacred Heart Home in Avilla suffering from Lewy bodies dementia, a form of dementia that shares characteristics with both Alzheimer's and Parkinson's diseases, he would tell those stories.

"He would tell jokes whenever we visited," Ewing said, "except for the last six months, when he finally lost awareness." Mr. Eshelman died Saturday, April 16, 2005, at the age of 93.

"He had a story for every occasion, and could always get people to laugh," agreed longtime friend Ora Gisel. "Especially if there was any stress, as there sometimes would be at church meetings." Both men were trustees of the First Evangelical United Brethren Church, now known as Faith United Methodist Church.

The two friends were active members of the church, and Gisel recalled Mr. Eshelman came to Kendallville when Gisel was 8 or 9 years old. He married Harriet Prentice, who was a classmate and friend of Gisel's sisters.

In later years following World War II, both men participated in the church's Christmas cantata. Gisel was a choir member and played King Herod; Mr. Eshelman ("He couldn't carry a tune in a basket," Gisel said) was a Roman soldier.

Ewing recalled that both she and her sister, Carol Ann, had a fit when they saw their father's extremely hairy legs.

"We told dad he looked like heck, and he should shave his legs," Ewing laughed. He did, and later joked about how much his legs itched.

Mrs. Eshelman was an organist and choir member, and Ewing recalled another occasion when her dad was to give readings between musical numbers.

Gisel, also laughing at the recollection, said Mr. Eshelman had trouble knowing when to begin reading, and during rehearsals would start before the choir was finished.

"Harriet tied a rope around his ankle, and would give it a tug to give Dale his cue," Gisel said.

Ewing said her dad actually could sing, but was intimidated by his wife's singing and musical abilities. She said he sang often while in the nursing home.

"He could sing every verse of 'I Don't Know Why I Love You Like I Do,'" Ewing said, "and he did pretty good!"

Mr. Eshelman loved to fish, and Gisel remembered him bringing fish to the Gisel home during the Great Depression.

"He knew mother loved fish," Gisel said, "but he would never take anything for them. He said that would be illegal."

"Dad was as honest as the day is long, that is for sure," Ewing agreed. "He always tithed, no matter how poor we were. He said that is why he lived so long, that the Lord was taking care of him in return."

Son-in-law Robert Ewing didn't know Mr. Eshelman long before his illness, but shared a love for fishing. "He was the neatest man I ever knew. I am so glad I got to know him," he said.

"He was a very loving father," Ewing said. "Mom could spank me, and I would cry, but Dad could get the same result just by speaking to me.

"Once I did something wrong, and Mom told me I was to get a spanking when Dad got home. I started to cry as soon as he walked in the door," she recalled. "Dad took me into the bedroom for my spanking, and he asked me if I was sorry. I said I was, and he slapped the bed twice with the yardstick, and then told me to bawl real loud so Mom would know I got punished.

"He was sensitive and caring, and loved very much."

Mr. Bolin never knew a stranger

BY JAMIE LEMKE-BARRAND
jamiel@kpcnews.net

ANGOLA — For decades, William Bolin sat on a swing in his backyard with many of his 14 grandchildren.

"My kids are 30 and 27, and he sat on that swing with them," said Karen Eyster, the oldest of Mr. Bolin's four children. "Madison (his youngest grandchild) is 6, and he was still out there with her, showing her the different kinds of birds."

Mr. Bolin died Thursday, April 21, 2005. He was 74.

Karen said her father was a great dad, but that he relished his role as a grandfather even more.

"All the pictures of him you find, he's pretty much always with the grandkids," she said. "He's pulling sleds or pushing swings."

The storied backyard swing at the Bolin's underwent some tweaking after Karen's daughter, Jenny, flipped over on it.

"She hung on, but don't ask me how," Karen said with a chuckle. "After that, Dad put two ties on the back of the swing so that didn't happen to any of the other kids. He was very into the safety of the grandkids."

Karen said she remembers her father helping out total strangers.

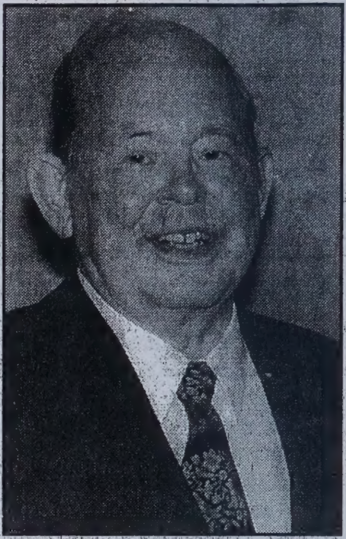
"He'd see people had left their lights on in their cars, and he'd get in to turn them off. We kept telling him he was going to get arrested, but he did it anyway," she said. "He'd help people out of the store with their groceries. One time, he was driving behind a car that was swerving. He got in front of the car, and the guy was drunk. He brought him home to sleep on our couch. Of course, we lived in the country and things were different then."

Karen said she remembers her mother, Marie, and her father being a loving, devoted couple. The Bolins were married for 50 years this past March.

"He loved my mother to death and would have done anything for her," she said.

Mr. Bolin was a major in the U.S. Air Force, serving in the Korean War.

"We moved every two or three years when my dad was in the service," Karen said. "Whenever we were in a new place, he'd take us around to see what there was to see."



Mr. Bolin

Mr. Bolin worked for Steuben Printing Co. and taught accounting at Tri-State University. He was a member of St. Anthony of Padua Catholic Church in Angola, Knights of Columbus, Angola Lions and Angola American Legion Post No. 31. He also was a Tri-State University graduate.

Stratton-Porter naturalist dies in U.S. 20 crash

BY JAMIE LEMKE-BARRAND
jamiel@kpcnews.net

ANGOLA — The naturalist for the Gene Stratton-Porter State Historic Site at Rome City died at the scene of a two-vehicle crash Monday night on U.S. 20.

Steuben County Sheriff's Department Sgt. Philip Nott said the naturalist, Patrick J. Bolman, 57, of Angola, died as a result of a head injury and multiple fractures he sustained in the accident, which happened just before 11 p.m. on U.S. 20, 163 feet from C.R. 15N, approximately a half-mile east of S.R. 327.

Injured in the crash was Steven Lee Hulbert, 29, of Indianapolis. He was flown by Samaritan helicopter to Parkview Hospital in Fort Wayne for treatment of lower extremity and internal injuries, Nott said. A hospital spokesperson said Hulbert was listed in serious condition this morning.

Nott's report said Hulbert was driving a pickup truck eastbound on U.S. 20, and Bolman was driving a Chevrolet Blazer in the opposite direction.

"Hulbert's vehicle went left of center in a curve, traveling into Bolman's path," Nott said. "The two vehicles hit head-on in the westbound lane."

Bolman was pronounced dead at the scene. Hulbert was pinned in his truck for about 45 minutes.

"Both vehicles were equipped with air bags that did deploy, however it does not appear that seat belts were worn in either vehicle," Nott said.

Also assisting at the scene were representatives from Steuben County Emergency Medical Services, Salem and Orland fire departments and the Indiana Department of Transportation.

Bolman spoke 'nature'

Gene Stratton-Porter naturalist who died in crash remembered for his gift of relating to people

BY BOB BRALEY
bobb@kpcnews.net

ROME CITY — The untimely death of Patrick "Pat" Bolman has left some big shoes to fill at Gene Stratton-Porter State Historic Site.

Bolman

The facility will be at a real loss without him, especially because of his ability to "speak nature" — translate the natural world into terms people could understand — said site cultural administrator Martha Swartzlander.

"He was so wonderful with kids and adults. … It's just a shock."

Bolman, 57, of Angola, died Monday in a traffic accident in Steuben County.

"He's been our naturalist," Swartzlander said. However, that term barely scratches the surface of what Bolman did for the site.

"He's been instrumental in helping maintain the property," Swartzlander said. He worked with Guy Swartzlander on building the Carriage House, which holds exhibits and the site's gift shop. He was always willing to go out of his way to help, she said.

But even more important than Bolman's physical work were his gifts of knowledge and an ability to relate to people, Swartzlander said.

"He was very knowledgeable," Swartzlander said. And he could translate that knowledge to people of any age. "He was so wonderful with kids and adults. … He was so kind to people."

He shared those abilities when the city of Kendallville started a special project over a decade ago, according to Kendallville Park and Recreation Department director Jim Goodwin.

"He was one of the first guys that we had help when we were starting the wetlands nature area," Goodwin said. Bolman wrote guides to use in the wetlands area that translated and interpreted information to make it more accessible to people using the park.

Goodwin added that Bolman was really a great guy.

Bolman was the first paid employee and the first paid naturalist of the Allen County Parks Department, said its current superintendent, Ron Zartman.

At the time, Bolman lived and worked at Fox Island County Park. "He had a dog named Dog," Zartman said. "He was kind of a Grizzly Adams type."

Zartman recalled that he had worked with Bolman when, before Zartman was employed with the parks, he brought developmentally disabled children there.

Bolman was great to work with and a great naturalist, Zartman said. "He was known for being a fun-loving guy and a good storyteller."

A Fox Island employee said that Bolman was known as a "legend."

Bolman also belonged to the North East Folk Music and Instrument Gathering in Shipshewana and was an avid dulcimer player.

"He loved caving," Swartzlander said. He enjoyed all sorts of outdoor activities. "That was his life," she said.

An obituary for Bolman appears on Page A4.

'Man in the wheelchair' stood tall

Frank and Joyce Bidlack relax at the Auburn Cord Duesenberg Museum, where he served as a volunteer for 18 years.

AUBURN — Frank Bidlack loved people. And they loved him right back. Mr. Bidlack did not enter a room — he filled it with his presence.

Large in stature, standing 6 feet, 3 inches tall, Mr. Bidlack greeted everyone with a winning smile and firm handshake. He made friends instantly and treasured them forever. Many of those friends drove hours to attend his funeral after he died Monday, April 11, 2005, at the age of 76.

"Ooh, we loved Frank!" was the enthusiastic response of Steph Helgesen and co-workers at the Auburn Cord Duesenberg Festival office, when asked about Mr. Bidlack, who had volunteered as ACD Festival photographer for nine years before his death.

"Frank would just stop by to say hello when there were no events to photograph. He was so fun, and we all loved it when he dropped by," Helgesen said.

For the past 18 years, all was not well with Mr. Bidlack, but he did not divulge details or complain about his life-threatening illnesses. His sense of humor never wavered, right up to the end, when — after a nurse kept asking questions as he lay in a drug-induced sleep — he suddenly awoke and asked his visitors, "Why is she asking me?"

Mr. Bidlack suffered an abdominal aneurysm in October 1986 that paralyzed him and confined him to a wheelchair for the remainder of his life. He suffered from macular degeneration and was legally blind. Last year, after being told he had prostate cancer, Mr. Bidlack underwent 41 radiation treatments.

Others might have given up, but not Mr. Bidlack.

"It didn't matter how badly he felt, he never let the outside world know about it," said Joyce Bidlack, his wife of 55 years.

Sharon Fouke, volunteer coordinator at the ACD Museum where Mr. Bidlack served as a tour guide for 18 years, remembers him well.

"I would be in the showroom and Frank would silently roll up behind me in his wheelchair," said Fouke. Then he would suddenly nudge and startle me. "Couldn't you hear me?" he would ask. "I'm a rolling Duesenberg."

Fouke always put Mr. Bidlack in charge of talking to the new tour guides. The younger men who gathered around Mr. Bidlack were instantly entertained.

"He had great stories and knew the cars inside and out," Fouke said. "He was an exceptional mentor."

In his early 20s, Mr. Bidlack got involved in doing choral work and was hooked. He played the tuba, string bass and saxophone, but what he really loved to do was direct. For years he served as director of the Mizpah Shrine Chanters and later, the Auburn St. Mark's Men's Chorus.

"We always had music in our home," said Mr. Bidlack's daughter, Inga Secrest. "From the time we woke up until the time we went to bed, there was music. Sometimes it was jazz and in the evening, it was classical to calm us down."

"From a young age, I could not get over the beauty of watching (my dad) direct," she went on to say. "He had poetic hands."

Secrest credits her father's influence for her love of music and dance. Her brother, Lynn Bidlack, is a jazz musician.

The Rev. Stephen Kummernuss of St. Mark's Lutheran Church in Auburn, where Bidlack was a member and past director of the men's chorus, said the first thing he noticed about Mr. Bidlack was his wonderful laugh.

"When I came (to this parish), Frank and Joyce met my family at the airport and the first thing they did was give us a tour of Auburn," Kummernuss said. "A group of us went to visit Frank when he was hospitalized in Chicago. We cared so much for him — everyone did."

"Dad was highly intelligent and never pretentious. He could talk to people from every walk of life. He never talked down to anyone and he was genuinely interested in what they were saying. Wherever we went, dad was talking," said Lynn Bidlack.

Frank Bidlack was born in Fort Wayne and at the young age of 13 found his niche in life when he began working in sales at a corner grocery store. He served in administration in the U.S. Air Force from 1951 to 1955 and retired from Rea Magnet Wire in 1985 after working as a sales representative for 27 years. He was involved also in the Southgate Lodge F&AM, Scottish Rite, Mizpah Shrine and Order of the Eastern Star.

Shortly after Frank and Joyce Bidlack married and moved into their first apartment, they met a couple who lived downstairs, Pat and Dorman Walker. The four became lifelong friends and the men even joined the Air Force and left for duty at the same time.

When they were older, both men became wheelchair-bound. Walker remembers attending a social event where Mr. Bidlack — who had more upper-body strength than Walker — "carried" his longtime buddy. "He was zipping along at a pretty good pace and I couldn't keep up," Walker said. "Finally, we hooked my walking cane onto the back of Frank's wheelchair and I held on while he pulled me through the hallways."

"When people would see me without Frank, they would say, 'Where's ornery?' or 'How's trouble?'" Joyce Bidlack recalls.

Secrest remembers how her father once woke up her brother — who was a young teen at that time and prone to oversleeping — with a Water Pik that he had filled with cold water and "fired" at the sleeping teen from across the room.

"The earliest recollection I have is of my father being so tall," Secrest said. "Years later, people would describe him as 'the man in the wheelchair' but I don't remember him that way. He was always bigger than life."

Mrs. Aldrich recalled as giving, loving

BY JAMIE LEMKE-BARRAND
jamiel@kpcnews.net

HAMILTON — Pam Aldrich said she got very lucky in the mother-in-law department.

"You couldn't have asked for a better mother-in-law," Pam said of Florence Aldrich. "She was a wonderful lady."

Florence died May 2 at Wesley Healthcare Center in Auburn.

She had been in failing health for some time, and was a fixture on the prayer list at the Hamilton United Methodist Church, where she had been a member for close to eight decades.

"Isn't that just amazing?" said Eric Stoops, the current pastor of the church. Stoops said that Florence and her late husband, John, weren't just church members, they were active members. John built the lectern that is still used in Sunday morning services at the church.

"She was such a sweetie," said Cathy Haynes, a Hamilton mail carrier and member of Hamilton UMC.

Pam said her mother-in-law found comfort in the kitchen.

"She loved, loved, loved to make cookies, pies and noodles," she said. "She'd make them, and then she'd give them to everyone. She was just so giving."

Betty Gibson was someone who benefited from that kitchen generosity.

"When I was laid up after surgery a few years ago, she'd cook and bring things over for me. She'd just sit with me and talk to me," Gibson said.

Gibson returned the favor by singing at Mrs. Aldirch's funeral.

"I thought, 'OK, Florence, this is what I can do to pay you back for what you did for me,'" Gibson said.

Pam was the significant other of Mrs. Aldrich's son, Jerry, for many years. Pam and Jerry had only been married for a few years when he died 15 years ago, but Pam said she and her mother-in-law never lost touch.

"It was on-and-off, but I always kept up with her," Pam said.

AVILLA — Former Avilla Councilman John T. DeLucenay, 46, of Avilla, died at his home at 4:44 this morning.

DeLucenay was born and raised in Avilla. His father, Leo, ran a drugstore in the town for 30 years. His mother, Kathryn, was very active in church and civic organizations.

DeLucenay

DeLucenay served on the Town Council from 1992 to 1998. He withdrew from a 2003 council primary run to spend more time with his daughter.

"We've suffered a great loss," said Avilla Town Council president Paul Shepherd, who served with DeLucenay during his time on the council. "He always had the town's interests at heart."

DeLucenay was fighting cancer for the second time in his life recently, Shepherd said. When the council president last spoke to DeLucenay, the former councilman did not discuss his illness. Instead he focused only on what the town needed, Shepherd said.

"We'll miss him," Shepherd said.

Gunshots killed Garrett man

Vehicle description given by witness lead police to suspect

BY DAVE KURTZ
dkurtz@kpcnews.net

GARRETT — Gunshot wounds to the head and chest killed John Mark Hardenbrook, 54, Friday morning, a detective said Saturday.

Police believe David Dean Barany, 30, of Auburn shot Hardenbrook around 8 a.m. Friday in the victim's apartment at 1104 S. Franklin St., Garrett.

Barany has admitted he was involved in shooting Hardenbrook, said Indiana State Police Detective Mark Heffelfinger. The detective said police do not believe anyone else was involved.

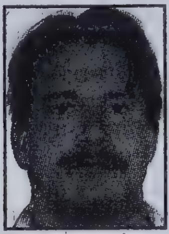
Heffelfinger arrested Barany on preliminary charge of murder Friday and took him to the DeKalb County Jail in Auburn at 8:54 p.m. He is being held without eligibility for release on bond.

An autopsy performed Saturday in Fort Wayne proved that gunshot wounds caused Hardenbrook's death, Heffelfinger said.

Police found one gun in Barany's possession when they arrested him and another at his house in the 300 block of North Baxter Street in Auburn, Heffelfinger said. Police have not determined which gun they believe was used in the murder.

The investigation has not produced a clear motive for the killing.

"I've heard a dozen reasons why," all from Barany, Heffelfinger said, "and I'm trying to get to the bottom of it."



Barany

Hardenbrook

Barany lives at First and Baxter streets, one block from J.R. Watson Elementary School, Heffelfinger said.

Police have not found any indication that Barany has committed any previous crimes. Heffelfinger said Barany has a gun permit, which means he does not have any felony convictions on his record.

Police quickly focused on Barany as a suspect after a female friend found Hardenbrook's body around 11:30 a.m. Friday.

Heffelfinger said a witness gave police a description of a vehicle that had left Hardenbrook's apartment Friday. Police also checked with friends and acquaintances of Hardenbrook and narrowed their search to Barany. Hardenbrook and Barany knew each other, Heffelfinger said.

Indiana State Police, Garrett Police, DeKalb County Coroner Richard Brown's office and DeKalb County Prosecutor Monte Brown's staff are investigating the murder, Heffelfinger said.

Hardenbrook lived in a tiny duplex on Garrett's south side, along an alley a half-block east of Randolph Street (S.R. 327) and one-half block south of Fourth Avenue.

The duplex is one of three small units, all in good repair with gray paint. They are surrounded by single-family homes that are neatly maintained and landscaped.

Hardenbrook attended DeKalb High School as a member of the class of 1970.

He had been arrested May 9 by Auburn Police on a body attachment issued by an Allen County court involving a civil (non-criminal) case.

In January 2003, Hardenbrook was arrested in Steuben County on a felony theft charge involving a crime on U.S. 20 west of Angola. In April of that year, he was sentenced in a Steuben County court to serve 30 days in jail for theft.

Mr. Gates ‘a man of infinite patience’

BY JAMIE LEMKE-BARRAND
jamiel@kpcnews.net

ANGOLA — When Jane Koehler met Galen Gates in the early 1980s, the single mother of three wasn’t looking for a husband.

But that’s what she got.

“I picked him up in a bar,” Jane said, laughing.

From those beginnings came a marriage that lasted 24 years, and from which Jane and her children and grandchildren are now looking back on with fond memories after Galen’s untimely death at the age of 51 on May 20 after a year-long battle with cancer.

“He had so many good points,” said Jane, with obvious love and pride in her voice. “He was patient and caring. He loved old people and kids. He loved his grandkids.”

When Jane and Galen met, her children were 14, 12 and 10. The couple was married in Fremont by town judge and justice of the peace Marj Mertz on Feb. 21, 1981.

“He got along with my kids right away, and they liked him,” she said.

Jane said getting together with Galen was kind of a culture shock for her.

“I was a city kid who got moved out onto the farm and learned how to milk cows,” she said.

Jane said her children relished their new country existence.

“He had them out on tractors and crawling around on beams in the barn,” she said. “Of course, I didn’t find out about these things until years after they happened. But they were having a grand old time.”

Galen was a man of many interests, talents and hobbies. He liked woodworking (he made furniture), traveling, riding old trains, fishing and playing cards.

He loved shopping for antiques.

“Anywhere we traveled, we had to hit the antique stores,” Jane said.

Galen had always been a hard worker, Jane said. He worked in farm management for Transguard Industries for 12 years in addition to working his farm.

When he was diagnosed with cancer last June, Jane said Galen “seemed to just accept it and took things one day at a time.”

“He talked a lot about when he was a kid and about things he wanted to do that never got done,” Jane said.

Jane said something her husband really missed as his illness progressed was being able to go outdoors.

“He just wanted to be outside,” she said. “He liked to walk into the woods and watch the birds and animals.”

Galen died at home, which was what he wanted.

“I really think he was at peace,” Jane said.

Jane said if people remember one thing about her husband, she would like it to be how patient and gentle he was.

“He was a man of infinite patience,” she said.

Mr. Rider a POW survivor, patriot

BY VIV ROSSWURM
vivianr@kpcnews.net

KENDALLVILLE — The first thing people noticed about Robert Thomas "Bob" Rider and his wife, Claribel, was what a handsome and friendly couple they were. Bob Rider, who died April 15, 2005, did not have any enemies, according to his longtime friend Jim Buchanan of Kendallville.

"I never ran into anyone who didn't like him," said Rider's friend of 25 years. "He was a good person. He took care of his family and enjoyed life. He liked to have fun and laugh."

Mr. Rider

Rider's sunny disposition and positive attitude prevailed despite the fact that he had endured a torturous, life-changing experience when he was 22 years old.

Rider, born in LaGrange County on Oct. 19, 1922, to James E. and Hazel J. (Steele) Rider, decided to join the U.S. Army Air Force at age 20.

Two years later, on April 18, 1944, Mr. Rider, a tailgunner, was aboard a B-17 Flying Fortress bomber along with a 10-member crew flying a mission over Berlin, Germany, and was feeling good.

He was one assignment away from completing his 25th mission — all the Air Force would allow before "retiring" combat flyers and sending them home — when his plane was shot down by the Germans.

The pilot, a young man from Fort Wayne, was killed instantly. Mr. Rider parachuted out of the flaming plane and drifted about 20 miles from Berlin before he began making his descent. The Germans were waiting for him. Five soldiers grabbed him before his feet touched the ground.

Rider and the other five survivors of the crew were separated, interrogated and kept in solitary confinement for 10 days. They received little or no food, water or bedding. Later, they were transferred to a prisoner-of-war camp 30 miles from Vienna, Austria, in a town called Krems.

Rider remained a prisoner of war for the next 13 months, until May 1945. What he remembered the most, he said in a 2001 interview, was being cold and hungry and without hope.

Rider — who had given up hope of ever getting out alive — sent one letter home and never wrote another.

That winter of 1944-45 was one of the coldest and harshest on record. Rider and his cellmates had very few blankets or warm clothing. Food was scarce. They constantly battled cold and hunger.

Rider passed the time by reading whatever he could get his hands on. It was in the POW camp that he first read the classic novel, "The Robe." For the rest of his life, Rider would continue to proclaim it as one of the greatest books ever written.

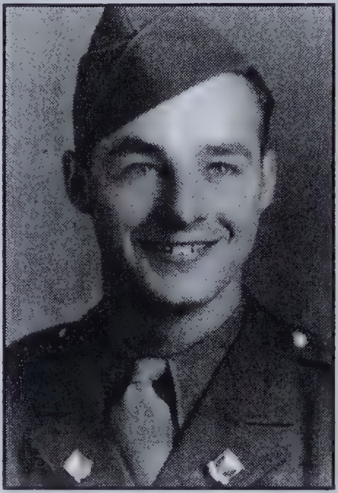

PHOTO CONTRIBUTED

Bob Rider wears his U.S. Army Air Force uniform at the age of 20.

Five days before World War II officially ended, the Russians advanced and liberated Vienna. In the meantime, the Germans secretly rounded up the 150 prisoners in the POW camp and marched them 150 miles toward the American lines.

They forced the prisoners into a woods and lined them up against a fence. Years later, Rider would tell family and friends that, at that moment, he was sure he was about to be killed.

But instead, the Germans began waving white flags at the approaching army — General George Patton's 3rd U.S. Army.

Rider and his companions were free.

Shortly after returning home to northeast Indiana, Rider spent a weekend in Fort Wayne talking to the dead pilot's parents and comforting them with tales of their son's heroism.

He bought a house in Kendallville where he and his first wife raised their three sons, Steven, Kim and Matthew. Rider took a job as a truck driver for Newnam Foundry, where he stayed for 32 years.

In 1987, he married Claribel Mae Long, and the couple made many friends through Bob's lifetime memberships to the Francis E. Vinyard Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 2749, American Legion Post 86 in Kendallville, the Elks Lodge in Kendallville, the VFW in Churubusco, and the Old Fort Chapter of American Ex Prisoners of War in Fort Wayne.

It was always hard for Rider to talk about what had happened to him, even after he was awarded the Distinguished Prisoner of War Medal. He never volunteered the story — it had to be coaxed out of him.

Mr. Rider's faith and patriotism was steadfast to the end. Even though he was 82 when he died, he often told friends he would not hesitate to join the Air Force, accept a mission and go to war to defend the country that he loved so much.

Mr. Calkins remembered as ‘good cop’

FROM STAFF REPORTS

“He was a good cop, up and up, and a nice fellow, too.”

That’s how former Kendallville police chief Ben Wilondek last week described another former Kendallville police chief and colleague Lloyd Dean Calkins, 83.

The former Kendallville resident died Monday, May 30, 2005, at the hospital in Sebring, Fla. following a lengthy illness.

Calkins served as police chief for 18 of his 24 years in police service. He was first named chief in 1949 and served until 1960. He was again named chief in 1964 and served until his retirement in 1972.

“I first met Dean at the diner on Main Street near where the Corunna Bedding store is now, and I was working construction at the time,” said former Kendallville Mayor John Riemke. “He was old school. He was more likely to talk someone he was arresting into his car rather than force him in. I always liked Dean.”

Former longtime Kendallville police officer Michael Newton calls Calkins his mentor.

“Dean hired me,” said Newton, who now works for Drug-Free Noble County.

Newton said he will never forget walking into the police department to talk to Calkins.

“He gave me an application and I walked across the street to the Palace of Sweets and filled it out. I walked back to the police department, handed him the application and he handed me a uniform and a gun and said I should be in at midnight to ride with Dick Davis.”

As a new police officer, Newton said he watched how Calkins conducted himself to learn how a police officer is supposed to act.

“When people came to the station Dean would always greet them with a smile, maybe a joke and it would put them at ease.” Calkins taught him how to respect and be courteous to others as a police officer.

“Whatever success I had in my police career I feel I owe to Dean, first for giving me a chance, and then for giving me an example,” said Newton, who was named an honorary pallbearer for Calkins.

Wilondek, who retired in 1975, worked alongside Calkins for about 15 years.

“We went on patrol together lots of times on second shift,” said Wilondek. “Dean was serious about his job.”

Calkins wasn’t so serious that he forgot police were there to serve the public.

In those days, Wilondek remembered when he and Calkins came across a drunk they were more likely to driv him to his home or take him to jail for an overnight stay and then set him free.

“Times have changed,” said Wilondek.

Bill Gisel, a young News-Sun police reporter when Calkins was with the police department, remembers how Calkins suffered from malaria attacks. He got malaria while serving with the U.S. Army in the South Pacific in World War II.

“How ironic, he’s a veteran and he passed away on Memorial Day,” said Newton.

Calkins was a Kendallville High School graduate.

A memorial service was planned in Sebring.

Memorials are to First Presbyterian Church in Kendallville.

Man drowns in Lake George

BY JAMIE LEMKE-BARRAND
jamiel@kpcnews.net

LAKE GEORGE — Divers from teams in Steuben County and Branch County, Mich., were preparing to go into Lake George this morning to search for a missing man who police think drowned Sunday afternoon.

"I know we're going to go back up and reconvene today and have a briefing this morning," said Bill Harter, a captain with the Angola Fire Department and member of the Steuben Country Underwater Rescue and Recovery Team.

Harter said the meeting would take place at Lake George Marina.

Harter said SCURRT members went out to search for the missing man shortly after receiving a call Sunday at about 3 p.m.

"We had to call it because of the storm," Harter said. "We made one attempt. We were in the water about an hour, and then that storm rolled in. It came on quick."

Branch County Sheriff's Department Sgt. Robin Swartz, who will be in charge of the dive scene, said the information she could release about the suspected drowning victim was minimal. She said until the investigation is complete, a name will not be released.

"It's a man," she said. "It looks like he was boating with a teenage daughter and her friend. He's 50 or 51 years old."

Although she couldn't be certain, Swartz said all evidence points to the victim being in the Michigan side of Lake George.

"It looks like he's on our side," she said. "We have a couple of last seen points for him, and they're all in Michigan."

Scanner traffic this morning described the water at Lake George as "cold and choppy." Officers on the scanner were discussing the possibility of waiting until later in the morning to start the search because "when the sun is higher, the visibility will be better."

Clear Lake resident Dan Hoagland, contacted by police officials, agreed to lend his helicopter to the search, scanner traffic indicated.

Search still on for Lake George victim

BY MICHAEL MARTURELLO
mikem@kpcnews.net

LAKE GEORGE — Divers were expected to return to the water this morning to resume searching for the body of a Michigan man who drowned Sunday in Lake George.

Michigan State Police officials brought in a special boat equipped with sonar equipment at about 3 p.m. Monday to aid in the search for Timothy Leto Sr., 52, Coldwater, Mich., who is believed to be in about 70 feet of water on the Michigan side of the lake.

"It was basically a father, daughter and her friends for a day of boating that turned tragic," said Sgt. D. Michael Gatke of the Branch County Sheriff's Office. Including Leto, there were five people on the boat.

Dive teams from Steuben County and Branch County, Mich., have been searching since shortly after 3 p.m. Sunday. Initial effort was halted at about 5 p.m. Sunday due to a storm. The search resumed Monday morning and carried on throughout the day. It was expected to resume today at about 7 a.m.

Gatke said Leto had been swimming off the side of his boat for about five minutes when he experienced trouble. A 15-year-old boy on the boat tried to help Leto, but the youth was pulled under, so he freed himself and swam back to the boat. Gatke said a woman from Marshall, Mich., who was in another boat tried to save Gatke but she couldn't reach him because her life vest prevented her from diving very far under water.

LIGONIER — An investigation is under way on several fronts to determine the cause of a fire that claimed the life of a 3-year-old Ligonier boy Tuesday night.

Ligonier firefighters and an investigator from the Indiana State Fire Marshal's Office were still on the scene of the fatal fire early this morning, trying to determine the cause of the deadly blaze at 302 E. Union St. The fire was reported at 10:04 p.m. Tuesday.

Officials have not released the name of the victim, who died at the scene, according to Joan Cripe, deputy coroner for Noble County. The coroner's office was still notifying relatives as of 8:30 a.m. today.

There were six people in the house when the fire broke out, according to a press release from the Ligonier Police Department. There were two adults and four children in the house, and the boy who died was the youngest of the children.

Fred Sumpter, an investigator with the State Fire Marshal's Office, was called to the scene around 11 p.m. and was at the house until about 7:30 a.m. today. He was working on his report and investigation this morning. While declining to say if a criminal investigation was under way, he said the circumstances surrounding the fatal blaze were "strange."

Ligonier police Detective Gary Cox also declined to comment this morning, other than to say he would be turning over his portion of the investigation to the Noble County Prosecutor's Office for review.

An autopsy was to be performed today, according to Cox.

The fire gutted the wood-frame home. Firefighters were called to the scene just after 10 p.m. Tuesday by a Ligonier police officer who was the first rescuer on the scene.

Upon arrival, police found the front of the home engulfed in flames, and learned that a child was still inside. Officers attempted to gain entry to the residence but the smoke and fire were too intense, according to the press release.

Officers were able to enter the house through a rear door, and located a woman on the floor. They escorted her to safety.

Firefighters discovered the child's body a short time later inside the house.

The house was destroyed by the fire. The major part of the blaze was contained within 30 minutes. But the 1 1/2-story home had several slanting roofs, making it difficult to put out every hot spot, according to Ligonier Fire Chief Paul Pfenning.

Firefighters from Sparta Township and Topeka volunteer fire departments were also called to the scene and assisted Ligonier. One police officer and a firefighter were treated for minor cuts at the scene, caused by breaking glass.

Pfenning said he would be making arrangements with the Red Cross to accommodate the family. The house was being rented by the family.

This was the first fatality connected to a fire in Ligonier since 1997 when a child perished in a house fire on the city's north side.

More information will be made available later today from the various agencies investigating the blaze, according to police. Agencies involved include the State Fire Marshal's Office and Noble County coroner, as well as the Ligonier police and fire departments.

Boy died from smoke inhalation

Fatal fire victim ID'd by authorities

BY BOB BUTTGEN

LIGONIER — Investigators are not releasing any information about the cause of the house fire that killed 3-year-old Andrew Imoe of Ligonier. The child died Tuesday night in the family home on East Union Street after fire broke out about 10 p.m.

Noble County Coroner Dr. Terry Gaff said the boy died from smoke inhalation. An autopsy was performed Wednesday.

The boy's parents, Albert and Amy Imoe, and three other siblings who were in the house when the fire started were able to escape. Ligonier police officers found Andrew's mother lying near the rear door to the home and escorted her out of the residence to safety. But the flames, smoke and heat were too intense to allow police officers back into the house to rescue Andrew.

Firefighters were able to control the fire and discovered Andrew's lifeless body a few minutes later.

Fred Sumpter, a part-time Ligonier police officer and an investigator with the State Fire Marshal's Office, was at the fire scene Tuesday night and Wednesday, investigating the cause of the blaze. He was returning to Ligonier today to continue looking into the cause.

Sumpter said this morning the investigation is not complete, and he was unable to release any information on the matter until his inquiry is complete.

Sumpter is working with the Ligonier police and fire departments to determine the cause of the blaze. The boy's family is staying with relatives near Kalamazoo, Mich., according to Ligonier Fire Chief Paul Pfenning. He said Red Cross officials from Indiana were notifying the Red Cross in Michigan, who will contact the family to see what help they may need.

One person involved with the case said the parents indicated they have no plans to come back to Ligonier, and it is unclear as to the status of the boy's funeral arrangements.

Gary Cox, a detective with the Ligonier Police Department, said he will eventually have to make contact with the boy's parents as part of the official investigation, even if that involves traveling to Michigan to meet with them.

Cox also declined to release any details of the investigation, but did say that because the case involves the death of a small child, he and others are being cautious in their dealings with the parents.

LIGONIER — A tragic fire swept through a Ligonier home Tuesday night, taking the life of a precious three-year-old boy.

Andrew Imoe, 3, was the youngest of four children who were home when the fire broke out in their East Union Street house.

The boy died as a result of smoke inhalation, according to Dr. Terry Gaff, Noble County coroner.

An autopsy was performed Wednesday.

An investigation is under way on several fronts to determine the cause of the fire that claimed his life.

Ligonier firefighters and an investigator from the Indiana State Fire Marshal's office were on the scene of the fatal fire until Wednesday morning, trying to determine the exact cause of the deadly blaze at 302 E. Union St. The fire was reported at 10:04 p.m. Tuesday.

There were six people in the house when the fire broke out, according to a press release from the Ligonier Police Department. There were two adults and four children in the house, and the boy who died was the youngest.

Fred Sumpter, an investigator with the state fire marshal's office, was called to the scene at 11 p.m. Tuesday, and was at the house until about 7:30 a.m. Wednesday, when he moved to the fire department building to work on his report and investigation.

While declining to elaborate, Sumpter said the circumstances surrounding the fatal blaze were "strange."

Ligonier police detective Gary Cox also declined to comment Wednesday morning, other than to say he would be turning over his portion of the investigation to the Noble County prosecutor's office for review.

The fire completely gutted the wood-frame home. Firefighters were called to the scene just after 10 p.m. Tuesday by Ligonier police officer Josh Halsey, who was the first rescuer on the scene.

Upon arrival, police found the front of the home engulfed in flames, and learned that a child was still inside. Officers attempted to gain entry to the residence but the smoke and fire were too intense, according to the press release.

Officers were able to enter the house through a rear door, and located a woman on the floor. They escorted her to safety. They were unable to go back in and find the boy.

Firefighters discovered the child's body a short time later inside the house.

The house was destroyed by the fire. The major part of the blaze was contained within 30 minutes. But the one-and-a-half story home had several slanting roofs, making it difficult to put out every hot spot, according to Pfenning.

Firefighters from Sparta Township and Topeka volunteer fire departments were also called to the scene and assisted Ligonier. One police officer and a firefighter were treated for minor cuts at the scene, caused by breaking glass.

The Samaritan medical helicopter was called to the scene and landed in the parking lot of the nearby Owen's Supermarket. But because the boy was pronounced dead at the scene, the helicopter and crew were not needed to transport anyone from the scene.

A dog was still tied up in the rear of the home this morning. Pfenning said he would be making arrangements with the Red Cross to accommodate the family. The house was being rented by the family.

A child's pedal-car, twisted and melted by the blaze, was near the front porch of the home. The victim had a brothers and sister who attended Ligonier Elementary School.

A delivery driver for a doughnut company who was at a local supermarket when he heard about the fire, dropped off several dozen doughnuts for firefighters and police.

This was the first fatality connected to a fire in Ligonier since 1997 when a child perished in a house fire on the city's north side.

Officials mum on cause of fatal fire

Inquiries directed to Noble County Prosecutor

BY BOB BUTTGEN
leader@ligtel.com

LIGONIER — The investigation continues into the cause of the fire that claimed the life of three-year-old Andrew Imoe on June 7 in Ligonier.

The investigation is being conducted by the Ligonier police and fire departments and the Indiana Fire Marshall's office.

Officials from all three of those agencies have been instructed to not make any public comment on a possible cause of the blaze that destroyed the Imoe residence at 302 E. Union St.

All questions about the investigation are to be directed to the Noble County Prosecutor, Steve Clouse, according to Pam Bright, public information officer for the state fire marshal's office in Indianapolis.

Clouse said this week that he will have no comment until the investigation is complete.

The fire broke out at about 10 p.m. Tuesday. Albert and Mary Imoe, and three other children got out of the house but Andrew perished in the blaze.

His body was not found until about 2 a.m. An autopsy showed that the boy died from smoke inhalation.

Officials involved with the investigation have acknowledged that the fire and its cause have taken a toll on the community, but are not shedding any light on the cause until the investigation is complete.

One person close to the investigation said, however, that the fire was not caused by any type of meth lab.

Gary Cox from the Ligonier Police Dept., and Fred Sumpter, investigator with the state, both traveled to Michigan last week to meet with the grieving parents.

Andrew's funeral was held on Monday of this week in Three Rivers, Mich.

Neighbors of the Imoe's have started collecting funds for the family. Donation boxes have been put up at many local restaurants and stores.

One neighbor, Misty Utterback, has started a savings account at a local bank. Donations should be made through her, and she can be reached at 894-7672.

Neighbors took up a collection of toys, clothes and other items for the family.

Marriage started in secret and lasted 70 years

Thais and Harry Heinzerling dance at a family party in the early 1990s. The couple enjoyed dancing and jazz music.

GARRETT — Thais Heinzerling stayed up the night before her death, busily handwriting histories for her family at her large kitchen table.

This was not out of character. Her candid observation of events surrounding her lifelong hometown of Garrett and the preservation of historical landmarks marked her 93 years.

She died June 10 in her rural Garrett home.

In a taped interview made for the Garrett Public Library in 2002, Mrs. Heinzerling described her childhood as the daughter of the newspaper publisher as one of privilege, though she didn't recognize it until years later. Garrett, at that time, was a labor town for the railroad.

She began working for the Garrett Clipper at the age of 10, standing on a box to "wait on trade" that came into the newspaper office. One of her duties was running advertising proofs to local businesses, which she estimated at about 43 at the time.

Heinzerling later helped write stories for the paper in the 1920s and 1930s, much of which encompassed the railroad activity.

"They were the biggest shots in town," she said of the prominent railroad families. When new personnel came to town, the ladies put on their gloves and hats and got out their calling cards, she said.

Local news in the paper covered all matters of social interest, down to the nut cups and color of napkins, she recalled.

She was among 56 graduates from Garrett High School in 1929. That fall, she and two of her cousins from Indianapolis enrolled at Harvard and Radcliffe colleges. The achievement she said "didn't impress me much at the time." According to her daughter, Gretel Smith, Thais took several classes amounting to nearly two years of college credit during her freshman year.

The families took a scenic route through Canada and Maine to get to the colleges in the fall of 1929. Heinzerling recalled they "ate all the fish they could tolerate" along the way.

But Thais did not tell her parents that she secretly had eloped with Harry Heinzerling in July, prior to starting college.

Although they grew up two blocks from each other, she didn't see Harry as a future husband, she said. But he told her he knew she was the one when, as a senior, he saw her cross the school football field.

Three years older than Thais, Harry attended DePauw University for a year, then returned to help with the family's hardware business for two years. He had enrolled at Indiana University in the fall of 1929.

Thais and Harry began dating Feb. 13, 1929, a day she remembered because of a huge box of Valentine candy he gave her.

One July day, a few months later, they took a drive to Goshen.

"He never even proposed," she said. She and Harry drove to three or four houses to find a minister. They eventually encountered a Baptist minister on a ladder painting his house. He agreed to marry them, while his wife served as witness to the ceremony.

"I didn't know we were going to go get married," she said. She was wearing a short shirt and Bobbie socks, a recent fashion trend in 1929.

Harry told her to remove her socks and tuck her hair under her hat so she "didn't look so kiddish."

The following year at Radcliffe included daily letters to Harry, and many phone calls, and quite a few tears.

After a year of college, Thais told her mother and sister of the secret marriage. Her mother "immediately planned a party," she said.

Thais did not return to college that fall — married girls were not allowed to attend college, she said.

She and Harry had six children, three girls, followed by three boys spread over 23 years. Each of the children was given a German name suited with the Heinzerling surname, she said. They include Gretel, Katrina, Johanna, Harry Derek, Carl Hans and Franz DeKalb.

In 1999, two months prior to Harry's death, the couple celebrated 70 years of marriage.

Thais was one of three incorporators of the United Way of DeKalb County, formerly the United Fund.

She and Harry resurrected the DeKalb County Historical Society as charter members. At the same time, she initiated a one-person effort to save the Cedar Chapel Covered Bridge, facing the threat of demolition. During that effort, she appeared on television and radio and got wide recognition in newspapers, including the Chicago Tribune. A long illness caused her to step aside from the campaign, which was picked up by John Martin Smith and Bobbie Smith. The bridge has been rebuilt at Conner Prairie Farm north of Indianapolis.

The Heinzerlings supported the local library and contributed to the former Sacred Heart Hospital, leading the committee to save it before it closed in 1972.

Family recalls Mr. Herman as strong-willed, honest

BY JAMIE LEMKE-BARRAND
jamiel@kpcnews.net

ANGOLA — Debbie Esterline, Dick Herman's oldest child, said she and her brothers inherited a lot of their father's qualities — and that's what is helping them as they grieve his death.

"He was very strong-willed," Debbie said. "I think that's what keeps us going."

Dick Herman died May 23, 2005, after a six-month battle with lung cancer. Even though he had cancer and was tired, his wife Janice said, "he never really felt sick and he was never really in pain."

He also never let his disease take him away from the job he had held for 35 years — being the owner of True Value Hardware in Angola.

"He had been through the treatments and he was doing awesome," Debbie said. "He never missed a day of work. We really thought he'd kicked it."

The store is being run now by Janice, Mr. Herman's wife of 46 years. He married her right after his graduation from Edon High School in Edon, Ohio.

In addition to Esterline, the Hermans have two sons, Denny and Dana Herman, and a grandson, Jason Armey.

"He was quite a guy," Jason said. "He was kind of hard to get to know, but once you did, he grew on you."

Jason said he also remembers his grandfather's strong will.

"Nobody was ever going to tell him he wasn't going to do something," he said. "He was sick, but he never missed a day of work. He went home early a couple of times, but he always came."

Mr. Herman's oldest son, Denny, said he didn't appreciate until years later the lessons his father taught him when Denny and his siblings were young.

"He was tough on you, but it was for your own good," he said. "You don't realize that's what's happening when you're young."

Denny said his father was always honest and never minced words.

"He told you straight up how it was, whether it was good or bad," Denny said. "The one thing you could be sure of was that he was never going to lie to you."

Debbie said something else her father truly loved was yard work.

"His passion was mowing lawn," she said. "I don't even know how many acres they had that he mowed."

Mr. Herman was a member of the Land O' Lakes Lions Club, and was also a regular at Tom's Donuts in Angola, where he was part of a coffee club. He was a member of Calvary Lutheran Church in Angola.
